

Task: To express your feelings about ANZAC day

Learning Intention: We are learning to use specific adjectives to describe our thoughts and feelings around ANZAC day commemorations.

As I sit and think about ANZAC day...

I feel grateful and appreciative for the men and women who lost their lives paying the ultimate sacrifice for our freedom.

I feel sorrow and sadness that many soldiers left their families in search of an adventure, yet never returned home.

I feel thankful that we now live in a country that is free of war and battle.

I feel pride as I hold war medals and look at photos of my family members who served many years ago.

I feel immense respect as I watch our flag being raised and our national anthem being played.

I feel gratitude that I have lived a good life with many opportunities offered to me.

I feel hopeful that the world will one day be a place free of war, fighting and strife.

At the going down of the sun, and in the morning

We will remember them.

Lest we forget.

Success Criteria:

- I will use specific describing words to express my feelings about ANZAC day and the Gallipoli Campaign e.g. I feel thankful, I feel hopeful.

Remember your...

- Capital Letters, fullstops and commas.